One day a poor woodcutter lost his axe in the forest. He searched for it everywhere but could not find it. He was very sad and said, "Without my axe, I will not be able to chop wood. If I don't chop and sell wood, I will not have money to look after my family." He had no money to buy a new axe. Tears started to roll down his cheeks and his shoulders shook with his sobbing.

Suddenly, the woodcutter heard a sound in the bushes. He looked up and saw a stranger standing there. The stranger asked the woodcutter, "What is the matter?" The woodcutter told him about his situation.

"Is this your axe?" asked the stranger, taking an axe made of solid gold out of his bag. The woodcutter said, "No, it is not. All the money I have ever earned would not buy an axe like that."

The stranger took another axe out of his bag. It was made of solid silver. The stranger asked again, "Is this your axe?" "No," the woodcutter replied. "I am too poor to even own an axe like that."

"I have another axe in my bag. Is it yours?" asked the stranger. He showed the woodcutter an old axe made of iron. "Yes!" shouted the woodcutter. "It's my axe. Where did you find it? Now my family will not starve." He jumped up with joy and thanked the stranger.

The stranger smiled at the woodcutter and said, "I will give you all the three axes as presents because you told the truth. You didn't accept the other two axes even though they are more valuable than your own axe."
